

Brian Tucker

As an executive and leadership coach, Brian draws on his extensive background as a high-performing C-Level executive. He was the Co-President of the world's largest coaching and leadership training organization, President and COO of a training institute teaching mental health professionals a cutting edge psychotherapeutic model, and also the founder of multiple companies. His leadership experiences uniquely position him to understand many of the challenges faced by fellow leaders. Brian is passionate about supporting leaders in identifying and surpassing their leadership goals, leveraging his deep understanding of leadership contexts and systems.

Blending various coaching modalities, Brian's approach involves supportive accountability, compassionate authenticity, and a keen recognition of his clients' brilliance and potential. Clients appreciate his non-judgmental listening, pragmatic insights, and ability to swiftly identify barriers hindering their leadership progress. Here is how one client aptly described their coaching relationship: "Brian's ability to understand where I am, hold empathy, and simultaneously move me forward, all while capturing the learning, is what makes him such a valuable ally for me as a leader."

While Brian's coaching initially focuses on leadership, clients often extend their engagements to explore broader life shifts. Brian, his wife, and his son live in California, just north of Silicon Valley. Beyond leading organizations and coaching executives and leaders, he enjoys mentoring, entrepreneurship, reading, and outdoor pursuits.
